SOMETHING IN POPE'S FAVOR —A Washington letter of the [illegible] of November [illegible] the Sacramento Union says that Pope was instructed to issue [illegible] proclamation when he advanced to the Rappahannock in August last. The intent was to get McClellan out of his troubles until [illegible] by a demonstration of Pope's forces. The correspondent in continuation, says

The bait took with the enemy. They rushed to the scene of the new danger with their Peninsular army and concentrated the troops they did not hurry to the Rapidan nearer to Richmond. Meanwhile the Government had provided ample transportation for the Peninsular army, the Sound steamers even some Nova Scotia packets being pressed into the service, in fact, temporarily seized. When all was ready orders were sent to McClellan to move at once. It was imperative that a part of his army at least should proceed with all possible speed to relieve Pope who had drawn down an overwhelming force upon his inadequate squadrons to carry out Halleck's plans and save McClellan. The orders to McClellan to move were three times repeated before he obeyed! and then he moved like a snail. Meanwhile Pope was contending with the army that had beaten McClellan with a fourth of the force with him that McClellan had. He was fighting, inch by inch—not that he expected to gain victories or capture Richmond, but to hold his own until reinforced. In the strongest terms he stated his needs and called for aid. Porter and Franklin, under McClellan's eye, disregarded all appeals, all orders. They lay at Alexandria unconcerned or exultant over the impending defeat of the General who had nominally superseded the man who had filled every bulletin with their praises. Hooker got the same orders from Pope and rushed at once to his aid, saved Pope's army from annihilation, in fact. After four days fighting he fell back. The exigency was over for the present. As he neared Alexandria he met Franklin, who had just started on the road in compliance with his orders. Franklin's excuse was that he had no horses. Hooker had no horses. He borrowed one to ride himself, and started off his command without waiting for them. Porter didn't move at all. Had the 80 000 men who lay on their arms around Alexandria been led to Pope's aid, he would have made good even the extravagant proclamation he issued to deceive the enemy and draw their forces in his direction. Pope was wantonly, meanly sacrificed and the safety of the country imperilled by the base deed. He fought like a hero against vast odds. His enemy had but to keep him engaged in front while they marched surplus troops around his right wing, and thus outflanked him and compelled him to fall back. After drawing his army out of its perils, he hastened to Washington. He filed charges against Porter and Franklin. He complained bitterly of the treatment to which he had been subjected, crying and swearing by turns, and he begged to be sent as far from Washington as possible. I have told you why those charges were not proceeded with. McClellan demanded these men to go with him in reassuming command. Could it be possible he desired to screen them from punishment for what is little less than treason? Why not let the Court martial ventilate the facts? When the history of this war is written by an impartial historian John Pope will not suffer by comparison with George B McClellan.

AN OLD TIME DEMOCRAT —Hon John K Porter was an old time Democrat, and once a friend and admirer of John C Calhoun. During the late canvass in New York, he sided with the Union Administration men. The following extracts, from a speech made by him at Little Falls, will be found to contain very forcible reasoning

The sympathizers with the South hold the claims of 300 000 slaveholders to property in human blood and bones, more holy than the claims of 20 000 000 of freemen to their heritage in the American Union. We hold, on the contrary that rather than sacrifice the interests of ourselves and our posterity in this blood bought Republic, it would be better that slaves and slaveholders sunk together into one common grave. We value the rights and lives of the free and loyal millions of the North, at a higher rate than those of every rebel and slave on the continent. No such alternative is presented. The pretense of slave insurrection is absurd. The South is armed. The unarmed negro never rises against armed men. There has been no insurrection of negroes since this war begun. The temptation to insurrection is gone. Their masters' treason has wrought out for them a proclamation of liberty by a power to which master and slave alike must yield. The negro race never fight for themselves when there are others to fight in their behalf. If the rebels really fear slave insurrection let them cease their work of butchery and preserve peace in their own homes. They may indeed be embarrassed by being compelled to choose between the insurrection they are prosecuting and that which Gov. Seymour fears they may have occasion to suppress. Our care is to preserve loyal lives. Let [illegible] theirs to keep their laborers at home. We have been true to the compact. They have been false. They confiscated Northern debts and the slaves of Southern Unionists held by the same constitutional tenure. The loyal slaveholders in rebel States will have no cause of complaint against us. They and we alike are subject to the perils, the burdens and the law of war. What that law takes from them their slaves, when public necessity demands it, forces us to the field and compels us to lay down our lives. But we provide for them—what we did not when we contemplated our own slaves—full compensation to every loyal slaveholder.

* * * * *

Maryland in which was shed the first blood [illegible] spared [illegible] the capital [illegible] that has taught [illegible] will teach the other Slave States [illegible] and wage [illegible]

TUESDAY MORNING DEC 16 1862

Danger of Foreign Intervention

Recent developments indicate that the danger of foreign intervention in our domestic strife is really greater than had been supposed. The French Emperor, it appears, has made the proposition to the British government to recognize the Southern Confederacy. This the British have wisely declined to do, but we owe no thanks to their forbearance for they are none the less the enemies of our nationality. They calculate on the exhaustion of the two sections, by a continuance of the civil war with the permanent dissolution of the Union superadded. The French have proven themselves our enemies, but until lately they have concealed their purpose by pretending to sympathize with us in our troubles. The employment of the Orleans princes in our armies created an angry feeling in the heart of Napoleon. The greatness of the American Republic was a stumbling block in the way of his schemes. His immediate designs on Mexico and Central America must fall to the ground if the Union is preserved. The South has designs on Mexico. It is included in the Golden Circle. France encourages Spain to seize important points in the West Indies. These are also included in the Golden Circle. The South has just as much interest in keeping Mexico and the West Indies in the hands of the present holders, as the North, at least until the time comes for her to appropriate them. If, in the meantime, they fall into the hands of a powerful European combination, the very purpose for which the South have dared all the horrors of civil war is defeated, for her intention, from the start, was to seize those countries, and erect a Republic founded on a distinction of classes.

If the French propose a division of the Mexican territories, it is possible that the South may accede to it. If they do so, it will prove that the last spark of national feeling has expired in the Southern heart, and that they prefer the destruction of American greatness to the defeat of their plans. Happily there are twenty millions of Americans who do not acquiesce. The ancient valor of the Spanish race is not dead in the Mexicans. There are nine millions of people who may be made formidable to an invading enemy, if they are inspired by the co-operation of the Unionists of this country, and armed by the destructive implements of American warfare. There is yet the proffered friendship of the Russian Emperor, to look to, and the possibility that he will launch upon Europe a Continental War, in which the compact power of Russia and North Germany—numbering ninety millions of people—would be opposed to the scheme of Latin unity, connected with slavery propagandism. The generous sympathy of Alexander of Russia is a reality. To the philanthropy of Howard he unites administrative abilities of the first order, and his capacity for managing military affairs is only second to the tact and energy with which he has carried out civil reforms. When questioned on the probable action of Russia if England or France should interfere in the American war, he answered: "Russia does not threaten; she collects herself." The import of such a speech, coming from such a man, is more portentous than menace could be.

On the other hand, we hear assurances from Southern leaders, that the South does not desire foreign intervention, and that when it does come it will find us united again. If this feeling is prevalent in the South, it will go farther to assuage the bitterness of this war. If, however, the South should coalesce with the French, the war will assume a new shape. The last bond that connects the two sections will be snapped. The Union will claim the Southern territory as its own, and war will be waged to evict the Southern people.

TELEGRAPH EXTENSION.—The British Colonist, of the 2d of December, discusses, at great length the probability of the extension of the telegraph when completed from this place to Victoria. A sub-marine cable of eighty miles in length will be required to connect Vancouver Island with Washington Territory. It will cost £100 a mile, which with the cost of putting it down, will bring the cost of crossing the Gulf of Georgia to £10,000. The water is in no place over one hundred and twenty fathoms deep, and its surface is nearly always calm. The cable can be laid without the slightest danger of a failure. It is calculated that £5,000 will build the line from Olympia to Portland. The calculations of the Colonist appear to be very just.

FRENCH CRITICISM.—The Prince de Joinville was on McClellan's staff during the battles before Richmond. He gives the soldiers of both sides credit for great bravery, but thinks the Unionists were too slow. McClellan did not seize advantages which were open to him. De Joinville attributes their slowness to the habits of the people, who always think before they move. Hence there is a lack of concert among commanders in the execution of orders.

Miscellaneous Paragraphs

Gen. Buell's conduct is to be examined into by a military commission, composed of Gens. Tyler, Schenck and Wallace.

Francis P. Blair will take the field as a Brigadier General. He is attached to Gen. McClernand's Mississippi corps.

The New York C[illegible] speak of the [illegible] Republican [illegible] after the party has [illegible] in existence [illegible] 1860 [illegible] in 1861.

Claib. Jackson [illegible] Governor of Missouri [illegible] distribution [illegible] what [illegible] worse than for a time. [illegible] Missouri [illegible] ment.

The Confederates are said to be willing to come back into the Union under Democratic rule. We are in favor of going into the Southern Confederacy under Abe Lincoln's rule. It is a poor rule that will not work both ways.

It is said that McClellan's army was suffering from the lack of shoes. Consequently he could not advance. Probably he did not want to charge on the enemy unshod, but wanted to go over them roughshod. If his soldiers were not shod, they were certainly shoddied.

The Emancipationists in Missouri have twenty-two out of thirty three members of the State Senate, and a large working majority in the House of Representatives. Four Emancipation Congressmen have been elected, and two United States Senators are to be elected this Winter.

There is a class of men in our country who have succeeded in making money out of our national distresses. The same men are very much like those who speculate on the honor of their wives, sisters or daughters. Their principal duty differs only in kind, not in measure or degree.

The Sacramento Bee says that General Grant is the war horse of the Western armies. He is a half horse and half alligator, with a sprinkling of the snapping turtle. No army that he commands will ever be disgraced by inactivity in the face of the enemy, or by contemptible dissensions among its generals. He moves upon the enemy's works and thinks that next to defeat alone nothing is more inglorious than not fighting. In short he is a soldier, and not a fancy drill master.

The war has been characterized as an insane attempt to overthrow the best government on earth. There is certainly a method in the madness of the Confederates that does not look much like unreasoning insanity. The "wayward sisters" are not such fools as they might be thought to be. It is just because they are sensible that we have confidence in their return to the fold of the Union. A genteel thrashing often opens the eyes of men; it will doubtless have that effect on our misguided Southern brethren.

WELL SAID.—The Marysville Appeal of the 5th inst. contains the following remarks on Gen. McClellan's removal:

"The evidence is clear that he was guilty of gross disobedience of orders, of contemptuous conduct towards his superior, Halleck, if not of purposely delaying the prosecution of the war for some ulterior object incompatible with a strict construction of patriotic duty. He was afforded abundant opportunity to vindicate his character and purposes, a Republican President retaining him in command after a Democratic General in Chief and Secretary of War were satisfied he should be removed. His failure involved immense loss and danger to the Republic, his tardiness after the battle of Antietam alone probably protracted the war six months, and wearied the North into casting majority votes against the Government. The nation labored under a delusion as to his true character, and every true patriot must thank God and the firmness of the President that such a source of domestic dissension and military disaster has been removed. Buell, McClellan and McDowell out of the way, and vigorous and successful Generals in their places, we may now be sure of victory, or at least of honorable, untiring action to obtain it."

QUESTION.—The last arrival of the Pacific at San Francisco is chronicled with the addition, "she brings $276,000 from Victoria, V. I." Now we denounce the statement as false. That money was nearly all shipped from this place. The Golden Era is responsible for this statement, and we hope it will be placed to the account of that paper by all citizens of this place who have the interests of this city and country at heart. The San Francisco press in general make a distinction against our interests, when we send them ten dollars to Victoria's one.

CAN'T SHINE.—The Colusa Sun has a native of Connecticut for an editor. He says that "If the Union is divided, and the North is permanently controlled by the Abolitionists, we desire no longer to live in it." The Red Bluff Independent says that the editor of the Sun is a fair specimen of "Nutmeg Chivalry." This is a new branch of the Southern Chivalry. All members of the new order of "chivs" are born in Connecticut, and have Southern principles. The Sun is a luminous example of "Nutmeg Chivalry."

MYSTERIOUS MURDER.—John Rains, of the Cucamungo Rancho, near Los Angeles, was murdered in a most mysterious manner on the road from the rancho to town. On the 17th of November Rains left home to go to Los Angeles in a wagon. Two days elapsed before suspicion of his fate was aroused. His horses returned home unharnessed. The wagon was found, after six days search, in the bed of a dry canon. In the course of another day the body was found with five bullet holes in it. Mr Rains was a prominent citizen of Southern California, and had a host of friends. The community is entirely at a loss to account for his murder.

LINCOLN ON McCLELLAN.—John Van Buren says that when the Union forces were driven back on the defences around Washington, Mr Lincoln addressed Gen. McClellan thus:—"Mac, I have very often heard of persons being knocked into the middle of next week, but this is the first time I ever heard of any one being knocked into the middle of last year."

NEWS FROM LEWISTON.—We have news from Lewiston to the 11th inst. We make up our summary of news from the Golden Age.

The Oregon Cavalry at Lapwai refused to receive their pay from Paymaster Francis. They say they were to receive $31 per month, and $12 [illegible] which was offered them with [illegible] for the use of horses and accoutrements. [illegible] more than $[illegible] to our [illegible]

Speaking of the new mail contract let to A. Miller at $[illegible] a year, a Walla Walla correspondent of the Age says:

This stupendous appropriation by the Post Office Department for a service that hundreds of good responsible men in the Territory would be glad to [illegible] the pay [illegible] creating a [illegible] coast [illegible] at St. Louis [illegible]

If we do not [illegible] this [illegible] industry [illegible] bankruptcy [illegible] of the [illegible] speak [illegible] matter [illegible] part [illegible] Government [illegible] in [illegible] this manner. [illegible] Delegate Wallace [illegible] Government [illegible] $[illegible] swamp.

Any man with common sense who has been at the points [illegible] knows that $[illegible] for this service would be an ample compensation, and [illegible] nevertheless, the route can be established without filching from the Government this unprecedented amount.

I have in my possession the names of parties responsible and able to give any amount of bonds to the Government for the faithful performance of this contract for less than one half that is awarded. This outrage upon the treasury of the country, at a time when we are laboring with the [illegible] is enough to arouse the just indignation of the public.

CITY.

The MORNING OREGONIAN has a larger SUBSCRIPTION LIST than any other Daily published in this City.

ROOM FOR [illegible].—The undoubted right of every American citizen to go to the infernal regions by a road of his own choosing, is pretty generally conceded for this reason, we can witness with a tolerable degree of calmness the orgies and bacchanalian cuttings up of a portion of the people of this goodly town But when, in addition to the prerogative named, drunken individuals render the streets unsafe at night to inoffensive citizens, we think a moderate degree of punishment for drunken and disorderly conduct will have a tendency to keep men at least half sober The police of the city are fully awake to the necessity of this step, and gentlemen on a spree will do well to rule themselves accordingly

FOR BURIAL.—The remains of Mr. Frank McHaley, of Marion county, were brought down on the Dalles boat, yesterday, on their way to Marion for interment Mr. McHaley died at his brother's house, on Dog river, of measles The complaint was aggravated by cold and his death was the consequence.—Much curiosity was excited by the spectacle of a coffin being hauled through the streets and we give the above in explanation

CHANGE.—The Oregon Steam Navigation Company has relinquished its charter obtained from the Washington Territory Legislature, and is reorganized under the law regulating incorporations, passed at the last session of the Oregon Legislature The official action of the Company is advertised in to-day's paper

MASONIC ELECTION.—At a regular meeting of Willamette Lodge, F & A M, the following persons were elected its officers for the ensuing year C. H. Lewis, W M, J. W. Cook, S. W P. C. Schuyler, Jun J W H. Seymour, Treasurer, S Pennoyer, Secretary, and F. M. Arnold, Tyler

DISCHARGED.—Mr. Lyon was examined about the cutting affair at the What Cheer House, and discharged

Coughs.—The sudden changes of our climate are sources of PULMONARY, BRONCHIAL and ASTHMATIC AFFECTIONS. Experience having proved that simple remedies often act speedily and certainly when taken in the early stages of the disease, recourse should at once be had to Brown's Bronchial Troches or Lozenges, let the Cold, Cough, or Irritation of the Throat be ever so slight, as by this precaution a more serious attack may be effectually warded off. PUBLIC SPEAKERS and SINGERS will find them effectual for clearing and strengthening the voice See advertisement

News from the Hawaiian Isles

We have files of the Commercial Advertiser to the [illegible] of November, from which we [illegible] the following news:

Specimens of cotton grown on the islands had been exhibited in Honolulu. The staple is somewhat shorter than the American [illegible] but the fibre is equally as strong. It is [illegible] worth from [illegible] 24 per cent [illegible] American [illegible]

Real estate sales in the city of Honolulu indicate great prosperity. On houses which sold [illegible] years ago [illegible] $1,000. A sale of [illegible] acres of land at $1 an acre is [illegible] Cotton and sugar lands are in demand and bring good prices. The tendency of investments is towards planting and stock raising.

The [illegible] estimates [illegible] the population of the Hawaiian Isles at [illegible] At the time of the discovery of the islands in 1778 the population was about 400,000. In 1804 a pestilence swept over the group of islands. The natives called it Ahulau. It generally proved fatal in one day. The number of those who died in two years exceeded those who were left alive. Only 175,000 were left. In 1853-4 [illegible] more died of the small pox. Again, in 1855 [illegible] more were carried off by the same disease. During this time the debaucheries of the natives tended greatly to decrease the native population, so that the remnant of 70,000 is all that represents the ancient power of this branch of the Polynesian family. The average excess of deaths over births is 2,772. However, the stringent laws against the sale of intoxicating drinks and the increase of moral sentiments among the people, give hopes of an eventual increase of the nation.

On a recent tour around Hawaii Dr. Wm. Hildebrand ascended to the summit of Mauna Kea, in company with Charles Hall and Capt Cummings. About 1,000 feet below the top, on a side of the mountain seldom visited by either foreigners or natives, they discovered an ancient manufactory of stone implements. It consists of a cave in front of which was a pile of stone chips 25 feet high, which had evidently accumulated from the manufacture of stone adzes, marlin balls, &c., which lay scattered about in an unfinished state. In front of the cave was found a wooden idol in good preservation, which, with the pedestal attached to it, measures nearly [illegible] feet high. In form the image very much resembles that pictured in Jarves' History, page [illegible] Bones of pigs and dogs, kapa, pieces of cocoanut shells, fragments of hewn wooden implements, sea shells, and many other curiosities were also found. The party loaded their guide and themselves with as many of these curiosities as they could carry, and returned to Waimea. On reaching Rev. Mr. Lyons' residence, the discovery soon became noised among the natives, who flocked to the mission premises to learn the truth of the report. On inquiry among them, no person appears ever to have heard of the existence of the manufactory—even the oldest natives were ignorant of it. From this it is inferred that its antiquity must date back beyond the present generation. On reaching Kona Dr. H. learned from Capt. Cummings that an old native was living there, who in his younger days had heard the place spoken of by his fathers, but nothing definite can be learned regarding it. The discovery forms an interesting incident in Hawaiian History, and may lead to further searches and perhaps discoveries regarding the ancient customs of this people.

PAPER AND ITS SUPPLY.—The Newburyport Herald, one of the oldest journals in New England, thus refers to the cost of paper and the difficulty of obtaining an adequate supply:

The cost of paper must soon greatly increase the cost of newspapers, books, and all printed matter. Recently it has advanced some thirty per cent., and should this war continue, it may go up a hundred per cent. We have fifty million dollars worth of paper manufactured in the United States annually. Printing paper is made from cotton and flax. Cotton in its raw or manufactured state—cotton waste or rags—is the chief article. We import two million dollars worth of rags yearly, and thousands of men collect rags about the country, while cotton waste from the factories comes in as a large supply of material. Now, whatever diminishes cotton, or raises its value, diminishes paper or raises its value. At present, there is little cotton waste and fewer cotton rags than formerly, and the price of rags in those countries whence we import them must go up, since there is a scarcity of material for manufacturing in Europe as well as here. If the price advances sufficiently, there will be less printing since books will not pay; the size of newspapers will be diminished and the price raised, or they will stop. Very many of the papers that were printed at small profits, and depended on single sales, do not at the present cost of paper meet their expenses, and the larger their circulation the worse it is for the publishers. The cost of printing paper has not been so high for many years, and this with the prospect of its going much higher, the increased cost of ink and other material, and the national tax has for the present "done up" newspaper publishing. Thousands of papers that have managed to live are now losing concerns.

RECOGNITION OF HAYTI.—Mr. Whidden, our Commissioner and Consul General to Hayti, has reached Port au Prince. The Republique, a newspaper there, refers to his arrival as follows:

Mr. Whidden comes to inaugurate the series of official relations between us and the great Republic of the North. We hope earnestly that these relations may be carried on to the highest development. Full of confidence in the issue of the crisis through which the Americans are at this moment passing, we record our prayers for the speedy realization of a peace attended by all the consequences of liberty. In that new era our commercial relations, already so important, will receive a new impetus to the great advantage of both nations. We shall be happy to see a distinguished man like Mr. Whidden aiding in that great result.

THE PRESIDENT'S LETTER TO GEN. McCLELLAN.—The Washington correspondent of the New York Times says:

It is understood that the President has furnished a copy of his letter to General McClellan, and on which McClellan failed to act, to General Burnside for the consideration and guidance of that officer. The President has also read this letter to various parties, and it will no doubt be given to the public. It is a document which will elevate Lincoln in the esteem of all thoughtful men, and will show conclusively that he has not been content with the nominal position of Commander-in-Chief, but has studied the great principles underlying the conduct of military affairs.

The Richmond papers approve of John Van Buren's idea of letting the South secede with the exception of the conditional precedent, which John affixes, viz: Richmond must be taken. The Examiner thinks it is useless to do it, as the Northern Democracy propose to give it up as soon as taken.
